First up is the announcement of our newest expedition for 2027: Vietnam's Endangered Primates: Photography Portfolio Tour.

Major tour targets include all three critically endangered douc langur species (Red-shanked, Grey-shanked, and Black-shanked), the endemic Delacour's and Hatinh Langur, as well as several gibbons, pygmy slow

Designed for serious primate and wildlife photographers, this flagship expedition offers extended field sessions and repeat visits, with flexibility around changing light and behaviour (Take a closer look at the expedition here!)

Explore The Tour

Back to the team, we've had some great research and training trips this past month! Our principal guide Hoàng Quý, worked with both our southern team (Cát Tiên) and northern team (Tam Đảo) designing new itineraries, developing field skills and finding some amazing targets along the way (Tam Dao Salamander, Brown Wood Owl, to name a few!).

Finally, we'd also like to give a warm welcome to our two new office team members, Diễm and Thảo!

We're delighted to have you both on the team and are looking forward to working together!

With warmth and care,

The Next Continent Team

Hear From Our Guests

We've shared our highlights. Now, let's hear from the people who were out there with us!

My son and I did a full day birding tour in Hoi An and the half day in Da Nang and we loved it! The weather did not cooperate fully but regardless we saw so many wonderful birds thanks to our brilliant guide Thanh. He is a true expert and a delightful person overall. This company is on the pricey side but you get true quality. I would not hesitate to recommend. I hope we can do more birding with them in a different season and in different locations.

like the langurs (which we did see). Tuan my guide was so enthusiastic about all the creatures, butterflies, birds, reptiles that I felt like I had an ecological experience rather than pure entertainment. Can't wait to go back and experience more of the amazing wildlife of Vietnam.

- Red-shanked Douc Langur: Sunrise & Sunset Motorbike Safari Tour -

Had a great experience birdwatching in Hanoi with Tran. Got all the birds we were looking for and more. She was super helpful with helping us find everything and made the day very pleasant. Was early to collect us and stayed later than agreed, price seemed very reasonable for such good expertise. Wouldn't miss. 10/10

My partner and I did the full-day Son Tra Red-Shanked Douc tour by car with a side of bird-watching and had a phenomenal time, despite the challenges posed by the very hot weather during our visit. Our guide, Huy, was very friendly and we felt like he got to know us and what we were interested in. Huy seemed comfortable and confident in changing our itinerary on the fly based on the weather (and our ability in dealing with it!) and our interests, which really helped make it special (unlike a large group tour where you stick to the group itinerary). It was also great having someone complete eBird checklists for you so could focus on the birding! An unexpected highlight of the tour was lunch, and it was definitely one of the best meals we had during our visit to Vietnam.

- Half-Day Explorer Tour - Afternoon -

I spent the most amazing 2 weeks with a group around South and Central Vietnam (Cat Tien, Son Tea, Bach Ma, Tan My) in search of monkeys and wildlife. We saw all the langurs and had great sightings of the gibbons. Our guide Tien was an absolute gem and spotted so much wildlife to show us during our day walks and also our night walks. She is extremely knowledgeable, passionate, friendly and go above and beyonds to please everyone.I can definitely recommend Next Continent.

What's next!

As we wrap up a productive September, we're charging headfirst into October (and our company birthday!) with a whole new set of surprises along the way!

Most notably will be the release of some new tours, sets of new equipment, and a variety of trips to some not-so-well-known places in Vietnam (more on that soon).

There's plenty to look forward to, so stay tuned!
